11 Days From Execution:

Kerry Max Cook’s 20 Years on Texas Death Row For a Crime He Did Not Commit

At age 20, Kerry Max Cook was convicted and sentenced to death for the 1977 rape and murder of a young woman. Two decades later, Texas’ highest appeals court threw out the conviction, citing overwhelming evidence of police and prosecutorial misconduct. DNA evidence eventually linked another man to the crime.

Since gaining his freedom, Cook has been a tenacious advocate for legal reform. Hear him speak at the USC Gould School of Law.

Thursday, Oct. 11
12:30 to 2:00 p.m.
USC Law Room 3

* sandwiches and drinks provided *

seating and food available on a first-come, first-served basis more info at www.law.usc.edu/events

Presented as part of USC Trojan Parents Weekend 2007